"Thanks to the
MYELOMA INSTITUTE,

I am surviving multiple myeloma and I will not let it deter me from making a difference in this world."

Ambassador Ruth A. Davis

Washington D.C.
40 year US Diplomat
18 year myeloma survivor

It's amazing how many lives can be changed by saving just one.

Ambassador Ruth A. Davis was soon to be appointed as the 24th Director General of the United States Foreign Service when she was diagnosed with multiple myeloma and given only three years to live. That was eighteen years ago.

Important decisions deserve a second opinion.

"This is a question of my life, and I will go where the best treatment is available."

The Myeloma Institute at the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences in Little Rock is an international leader in the research and treatment of multiple myeloma and related blood cancers.
